

BOWIE AT BOWIE AND OTHER THINGS

HEPHAISTUS MAKES IT FOUR IN A ROW

Frank Brown's Colt Beats Good Field of Juveniles in Test at Bowie.

MODO FINISHES SECOND

Rubidium Leads Home Opponents in Handicap—Slippery Elm Scores.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD. BALTIMORE, Nov. 26.—Racing was brought to an auspicious close at the Bowie track this afternoon. A drizzling rain fell most of the day and the track was deep in mud. The attendance was good considering the weather.

Frank E. Brown's Hephæstus, the best two-year-old development of the fall season, took the endurance race of a mile. It was the fourth victory for the son of Vulcan in as many starts.

In today's race this afternoon Hephæstus took the measure of George Odum's good colt Modio, and while he was undoubtedly favored by the going he performed in a manner to suggest that Frank Brown has a particularly good three-year-old prospect.

The claiming handicap that was the real feature was a test of a mile and five furlongs and it went to J. W. Bean's Rubidium. Fillies were second and third when H. T. Oxnard's Lady Emmeline raced home second and W. Fenwick's Dresden third.

The other feature of the closing day card was a handicap that went to the unmythical Slippery Elm in a well run race over the mile and seventy yard distance.

Most of the New York horsemen who remained with their charges for the end of the season will ship back to-morrow. Several of them will go to Belmont Park for the winter.

Others who contemplate winter racing have made plans to ship to New Orleans or Tampa. This is the final parting of the ways until Bowie ushers in the Eastern racing again next April.

AM V. A.C. TRAPS Makes 98 Despite High Wind and Heavy Rain—Two Cups for Ranney.

Forty gunners experienced the worst shooting conditions so far this season at the Travers Island traps of the New York Athletic Club yesterday. A high wind swept a heavy rain into the faces of the marksmen, making it exceedingly difficult for them to see the targets. Regardless of the conditions, A. Siebert won the high scratch prize with the good total of 98 out of a possible 100 targets.

Famous Scottish Courses Still in Perfect Shape

John G. Anderson Marvels at November Condition of Carnoustie and St. Andrews—Hears Andra Kirkcaldy's Opinion of American Professional Stars.

By JOHN G. ANDERSON. Jock Hutchison won the open title. Strangely enough, unaware that he was the professional at his home club, Kirkcaldy started in on Tom Kerrigan, the morning too, but clearing around 2 in the afternoon. The sort of weather which makes one give thanks for America.

Today I had a round of golf over the famous Carnoustie links where graduates, as for instance Alex and Willie Smith, George Low, Clarence Hackney, Fred Brand, Archie Simpson, James and Stuart Macdonald, and a hundred others, have put and kept this particular part of Scotland on the golfing map of America and the world. Archie Simpson, the ten-year-old prodigy, the professional at the Detroit Golf Club, and Hugh Bain, a scratch golfer, braved the elements with me. The course was in grand shape and the greens true as ever. Winding in and around was a little canal, making for placed shots, while the roar of the surf at times was most distinct. The best ball against a bogey of 82 was 66.

While at Carnoustie Robert Simpson invited me into his home for the sight of something I had probably never seen before. It was a golfing room, an oval room with a high ceiling, a large fireplace, and a large window looking out onto the golf course. The room was filled with golfing trophies and a large collection of golfing books.

I., Nov. 26.—Nassau county is to have another golf club within the near future, for steps have already been taken by a large group of representative business men of Glen Cove, Locust Valley and Sea Cliff toward the formation of such an organization. The idea has reached the stage where an option has been secured on the farm of Herbert L. Pratt at Brookline, not far from the Pine Rock Club.

WESTERN LINKSMEN WILL INVADE EAST

Pacific - Northwestern Stars Plan to Play at Brookline Next Year.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD. PORTLAND, ORE., Nov. 26.—Pacific Northwesters which furnished the golfing support of the season by sending so many fine players to the national amateur championship at St. Louis, will have even stronger representation at Brookline, Mass., when the next championship is contested, according to Guy M. Standifer, of the Waverly Club of Portland, Ore. Standifer is spending the winter at Washington and played here in the amateur-professional tournament.

Few golfers who attended the St. Louis championship realized that nine of the eleven players from the Northwest who participated were guests of Standifer and he was so elated by the fine showing made by these golfers that he will extend an invitation to them and other strong players from the section to Brookline next summer. This will assure the Brookline meeting of having real national representation.

Nine of the westerners in the preliminary Northwest qualifying round of the St. Louis championship and six of the nine who would have been invited to St. Louis were unable to attend, but he hopes to have them lined up for Brookline. They are Heinrich Schmidt, Clare Griswold and Forrest Standifer.

Standifer is enthusiastic concerning Northwestern golf. He stated that he had recently received a letter from H. Chandler Egan of the Waverly Club, presenting a proposition to build a championship course at Gearhart, Ore., on the shores of the Pacific Ocean. It would be about 100 miles from Portland, and if the plans are carried out, it would be the finest in the Northwest. Standifer has seen the country and says that the land formation and turf are so well adapted that championship golf could be built there at a reasonable outlay and that any hole on the seacoast courses abroad could be copied. "The idea," said Standifer, "would be to make a Northwestern Pine Valley."

The East and England will see the champion woman golfer of the Northwest next season, for Miss Phoebe Tidmarsh of Seattle, a fine player of the district title, will play in both the British and American championships. It will be her first opportunity for competition outside of the Pacific coast, and golfers there expect much from her. She has broken 90 in competition in Seattle and won the qualifying round in the 1920 Western Open and the championship over the 6,300 Waverly Club course in Portland with an 88.

Miss Tidmarsh is 21 years old and strong. She drives a long ball, as far as the average man player. Miss Helen Farrell, also of Seattle, is a fine player and may decide to make the foreign trip with Miss Tidmarsh.
